

SPOTLIGHT FOR SLAYER SHIFTED TO PHILADELPHIA

Police Seek Wealthy Male
Friend of Gladys
Parkes Baker

Father of Child Fears Small
Son Has Met Same
Fate as Girl

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—(INS)—

The spotlight shifted to Philadelphia today in the search for the slayer of four-year-old Dorothy Rogers as police sought a wealthy male friend of Gladys Parkes Baker, erstwhile cabaret entertainer and Philadelphia model, for whom a warrant has been sworn out charging her with suspicion of murder in the child's death.

Arrest of the male friend, who posed as the woman's husband when she secured possession of the little girl and her brother, Timothy, 2, police are confident will throw much light on the circumstances surrounding the child's death. The four-year-old ward was slain and her body dissected and immersed in quicklime to hasten its decomposition, police charge. Then the attractive showgirl packed the body into a suitcase and deposited the skeleton under a clump of bushes near National Park, N. J., Camden county detectives charge.

The tragedy and the fears of the child's fear-crazed father, Alan Rogers, Woodbury insurance agent, that his baby son also has met the same fate as Dorothy, has aroused entire South Jersey, and State Police of two States have joined in the search for the red-haired missing beauty. The search will be greatly expedited, authorities say, with the arrest of the man who now is believed to have supplied her with large sums of money during the early days of her residence in Camden.

St. Louis police have been asked to join in the search for the Baker woman following a report that she had moved to the middle western city several weeks ago.

Heretofore unrevealed details may be the basis of the present probe of the tragedy the bereaved father intimated today as he told of employing a private detective in the search for his children.

"I think I know why she killed them," he said, "but I cannot reveal that reason now."

Police have learned that the missing chorus girl was a first cousin of Rogers' wife who died about a year ago, leaving him with six motherless children. She was permitted custody of the two Rogers children because of the father's belief of her love of children and upon the pleading of her male friend.

PLANE TALK

8, Using Weather Knowledge In Flight

Before taking off, the flyer studies local weather conditions. Ceiling, visibility and the direction and velocity of the wind are carefully considered. If he is to hop cross-country, he examines weather reports for territory along his route.

A glance at the flying field weather vane (wind sock) tells him the direction of the ground wind. From its action, too, he may judge with some accuracy the strength of the surface air currents. He takes off and continues flying into the wind until he has gained sufficient altitude to make downwind turning safe.

Once aloft, he watches the clouds carefully. Their formation will forewarn him of drastic changes in the weather. From heavy (nimbus) clouds he may expect rain. Thunderheads (cumulus) he avoids.

In cold weather, with the thermometer between 25 and 35 degrees Fahrenheit, nimbus clouds and their rain or wet snow may promise ice formations on the wings. These coatings, altering his cambers, may seriously affect the flying efficiency of his machine.

Fog, low-lying cloud, the flyer can readily see. He stays out of this, too, preferring to land anywhere under a clear sky than to reach his destination and attempt descent through a shroud of fog which may blot out his sight of ground objects until he is upon them.

(Tomorrow's article of Plane Talk will discuss Navigation.)

MRS. ANNA KELLY FREED IN DEATH OF DI BLASIO

No Evidence Produced To Show Woman Was Negligent
In Automobile Accident

INQUEST LAST NIGHT

At an inquest conducted by Dr. John J. Sweeney, of Doylestown, coroner of Bucks County, at the municipal building, here, last evening, Mrs. Anna Kelly, 221 Madison street, was exonerated of all blame in an accident case, involving the death of Paul DiBlasio, who was struck by the automobile driven by Mrs. Kelly on the night of October 26th.

Coroner Sweeney was assisted by Deputy Coroner W. Furman Young, of Bristol.

No evidence was produced to show that Mrs. Kelly had been negligent in any manner when the tragedy occurred.

Following the accident Mrs. Kelly stated that DiBlasio must have been walking in the middle of the roadway and she did not see him in time to stop the car before the man was struck. The accident occurred at about 8.45, October 26th, on Filmore street, between Radcliffe street and Farragut avenue.

DiBlasio, who suffered a broken hip, compound fracture of the right leg, and severe lacerations of the body, died at the Harriman Hospital on the morning of October 28th.

The trio: Charles McCarthy, 30, of 1006 Olive street, Philadelphia; William McPetridge, 31, of 315 North 55th street, New York City; Edward Bender, 32, of 1008 Richmond street, Philadelphia, formerly of Bristol.

MEMBERS OF RED CROSS ATTEND THE LUNCHEON RALLY

Five Women Represent Bristol Branch at The Meetings

BELLEVUE - STRATFORD

Colonel J. Franklin McFadden, Chairman of Chapter, A Speaker

A quintet of local women represented the Bristol Branch of the South-eastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross at the general luncheon rally held in the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia, yesterday, the affair being attended by over 300 individuals.

The five from Bristol were: Miss Frances Landreth, Mrs. Louis C. Spruz, Mrs. Archibald Morris, Mrs. Charles S. Abbott and Miss Mary W. Swain.

At this, the largest luncheon of its kind that has been held at the South-eastern Chapter, it was stressed by Colonel J. Franklin McFadden, chairman of the chapter, that "the American Red Cross must have larger membership or else, within about three years, see the reserves set aside for the purpose of disaster relief and for services for World War veterans and their families, exhausted."

Two important meetings were held yesterday for the hundreds of volunteers from Philadelphia and adjoining counties of Bucks, Delaware, Chester and Montgomery, who are preparing for the Red Cross roll call. The thirtieth annual membership enrollment of the great organization of relief and mercy opens Armistice Day to continue until Thanksgiving.

Walter Davidson, assistant manager of the Eastern Area of the National American Red Cross, emphasized the great program of relief work accomplished nationally and internationally by the organization.

Mr. Davidson told his audience that the Red Cross has rendered aid in 117 domestic, 3 insular, and 11 foreign disasters, including epidemics, earthquakes, shipwrecks, volcano eruptions, fires, floods, typhoons, tornadoes, famines and landslides. More than $50,000 people were given aid in domestic and insular disasters. Thirty-eight States in the Union were affected by one or more types of disaster and received Red Cross assistance. More than $8,600,000 was spent in the past year for disaster relief in the United States, insular and foreign work.

Colonel McFadden pointed out that almost one-third of the national organization's annual income from all sources is absorbed in disaster relief. This, he pointed out, is in excess of any special contributions made by the public. In the last fiscal year only one out of the 131 disasters which required aid from the American Red Cross in personnel and money, was met by an appeal to the public for funds.

"For World War veterans and their dependent families for the current year, over $750,000 is the estimated national budget for war service," Colonel McFadden said. "We shall commemorate next Monday, the ending of the war eleven years ago, but its after-effects on those who served in the Army and Navy will not reach the peak for years to come. Today there are over 25,000 men in Government hospitals as the direct or indirect result of their service in the American forces in the World War. The Red Cross is rendering a special service to war veterans that no other organization is equipped to do, and which the Government legally cannot do."

"The Red Cross must have a larger membership or else, within three years, see the reserves set aside for Disaster Relief and World War Veterans and their dependents exhausted. "For the past seven years the National Treasury has been depleted at the average rate of $1,447,000 annually, and the total since the World War ended, has amounted to over thirty-five million dollars. The vanishing point is now in sight unless chapters all over the country wake their citizens to that fact."

Doylestown Board Opposes School Commercial Adv'g.

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 7.—In session here Doylestown school board went on record as being opposed to commercial advertising through the schools of the borough.

This action came after the board members had been informed that numerous firms continually bother the school with advertising schemes such as free book covers, lead pencils, rules and many other things, all of which the donors want distributed among the students. The rules and book covers carry advertisements of out-of-town firms.

In the opinion of the board this type of advertising is not fair to the local business concerns, for that reason the board went on record as being strongly against it.

REVERE MAN FINED FOR SHOOTING HEN PHEASANT

Bird Found on Premises During Search by Game Protector

TRENTONIANS FINED

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 7.—Alleged shooting of a hen pheasant cost a Bucks county Justice of the Peace, Leroy Walters, owner of the Paul Revere Hotel, Revere, the sum of $25. Game Protector Warren Fretz had just returned to Revere after having visited one of the game preserves in the upper part of the county, when he saw Walters emerging from a shed adjoining the hotel with a bird. The officer made a comment upon bagging a bird and Walters is alleged to have made a hasty retreat to the rear of his residence.

Becoming suspicious Mr. Fretz entered the house and questioned both Justice Walters and his wife. They are alleged to have denied having shot a pheasant. A search of the premises followed and in a short time Protector Fretz found a hen pheasant in an out-house. The bird was still warm.

The justice was given the choice of either having the case taken before another Justice or paying the fine of $25 at once. He decided upon the latter as a means of settlement.

Two Trenton hunters, Michael Rosito and Pasquale Imbalzano, were arrested by Deputy Game Protector Leslie G. Brooks, Morrisville, on charges of having hunted in the county with resident licenses. In the first place the men gave Morrisville as their residences. A check-up showed that they were residents of Trenton. One of the men had spent three days in the county and the other had hunted here two days. The law provides for a fine of $40 for every hunting day. It also states that for every rabbit taken out of the state the violators must pay a $10 fine. The two are alleged to have shot 13 rabbits.

Taken before Justice of the Peace Kunsman, Morrisville, Rosito was fined $200 and Imbalzano was fined $170.

EXAMPLE

Whenever an American, a Canadian or an Englishman is called upon to address a gathering at which either or both of the other two nationalities is represented, there is one topic to which he will certainly refer, and the reference, although it is altogether expected and, indeed, inevitable, is invariably greeted with volleys of surprised and enthusiastic applause. That topic is the undefended frontier, 3000 miles long, between the United States and Canada; and the speaker will expatiate at length upon the sweet sympathy which has allowed two nations, each of them ambitious and each, in a sense, aggressive, to live side by side for more than a century without any breach of the peace.

The United States and Canada, by referring their differences to the arbitration of reason rather than of force, have set an example which the rest of the world would do well to follow. The hundred years' peace is founded largely on mutual sympathy and forbearance and certain political considerations which apply exclusively to this continent.

Another factor which has contributed to these international relations, which have no parallel in history, is the relationship that existed between Canada and Great Britain. Until recently Great Britain was responsible for the foreign policy of the dominion, and since any conflict between Canada and the United States implied the disintegration of the British Empire, Great Britain was careful to see that no such conflict occurred. Indeed, Great Britain was considerably more forbearing in regulating the relationships of Canada with the United States than Canada would have been as the mistress of her own destinies.

But there is no reason, now that Canada maintains her own diplomatic representative in Washington, to suppose that a crisis is momentarily possible.

TREES

A small boy looks on a tree as a challenge to his anthropoid inheritance and the endurance of his trousers or as a standing invitation to build therein a tree house at the risk of his young neck. A tree surgeon estimates it in terms of cavities and "vegetable calamities." A lumberman looks at it and is busy with calculations of timber lengths and size. The conservationist laments that there are not thousands more like it. And the landscape architect sees it in its relation to its surroundings.

But the great rank and file do greater honor to the friendly trees and regard them, care for them and preserve them for their infinite capacity for refreshment. No trifling profit that can be cut out of the heart of a tree in a sawmill can compensate for the spiritual loss of its company.

Educational work and propagandizing done in recent years in behalf of tree conservation and reforestation has not been in vain. States, counties, cities, highway departments, corporations and private land owners are planting trees by the millions this fall, as they have been doing each spring and fall planting reason for several years.

An airplane that can do 355 miles an hour should be just the thing for the sub-divided whose lots are only eight minutes from the bus line.

Demonstration Is Given By Students at Edgely

Demonstrations in arithmetic and history work were given to their parents by pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the Edgely public school at the Edgely school last evening.

The demonstration, arranged to be given before the parents of the upper grade children, was in charge of Donald Snively, principal of the Edgely building.

The work was extemporaneous on the part of the children, the group having no knowledge of just what work would be placed before them at the session.

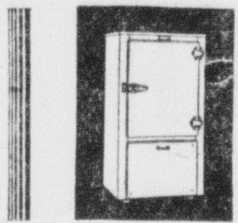

Recitations by Margaret Moore and Dorothy Dunbar were enjoyed; as was also a reading by Norren Wheeler.

Supervising principal of the Bristol township schools, George F. Zarr, gave a short talk relative to the Parent-Teacher Association, and it is hoped that last night's meeting will be an incentive for the forming of such an organization.

Following Mr. Zarr's talk the meeting was thrown open for discussion and asking and answering of questions.

The school paper, a folder which is prepared and arranged by the students of the Edgely school, and copies of which are made on a duplicating machine, was shown to those assembled. The boys and girls have done splendid work on the sheet, and commendations were forthcoming.

"KONJOLA WAS MY FIRST AND ONLY SOURCE OF HELP"

Man, Free of Indigestion and Nervousness, Gives Praise To Master Medicine

MR. WILLIAM R. MEDARY

"I suffered intensely from indigestion, nervousness, and rheumatism," said Mr. William R. Medary, of Oxford, Pa. "I had had attacks of indigestion that would give me severe pain. Rheumatism caused no end of misery. My hands and feet were badly swollen and pained me terribly. My nerves were in very bad shape. I was so restless that I never got a good night's sleep. I lost weight and strength."
"Konjola proved to be my first and only source of help. After taking three bottles of this medicine, the rheumatism completely disappeared, my stomach was in good condition, and my nerves were calm and steady. I never have any trouble with indigestion now, and sleep soundly all night long. I have gained weight and have my strength and energy."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffmann's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

SPORTS

B. H. S. XI HAS HOPES OF DEFEATING HOPEWELL

By T. M. Juno

Bristol High School will attempt to get on the winning road again tomorrow when the eleven takes a long journey to Hopewell, where they play the team representing that borough's high school.

Last season the Cardinal and Gray handed the Jerseys a 13-0 defeat and has a strong determination to repeat this season.

The locals pulled a big surprise last week when they held Bordentown High School to a scoreless tie and with a little luck might have scored a victory.

All this was done despite the facts that several regular members of the squad were injured and several missing because of the scholastic regulations.

Next Friday, Springfield High School will be entertained with a gridiron serving on the Bristol High field.

CROYDON ATHLETIC CLUB HAS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

CROYDON, Nov. 6.—The regular meeting of the Croydon Athletic Club was held Monday night at Creek Inn, here. The resignation of Thomas Levey, as president, was accepted, and Albert Jayne was elected as president pro tem.

The regular meetings of the A. C. will now be held on the first and third Mondays of each month at Creek Inn. A drive for membership has been opened. The initiation fee is $1.00, and dues are 25c per month. Men of Croydon, Bridgewater and Maple Shade are invited to join the A. C.

A crack soccer team is now on the field, also basketball team. A second soccer team of all local boys has been formed and will play their first game on Sunday, November 17th, on the Bristol Pike field. On the 17th a double header game will be played, the second team starting at 1.30 and the first team at 3.30.

In the membership drive, boys 14 years and over are eligible for membership.

The Croydon A. C. will co-operate with each and every organization in Croydon and vicinity to help bring the town before the eyes of the public.

Word comes from Paris that the new styles will permit women to show more discriminating taste. It is high time. They have shown about everything else.

Up to a point most girls think about marrying. After that, they worry about it.

"Tough about that lady!"
"Yea, what?"
"She was running for mayor."
"Well?"
"She lost her supporters right before election."

Tuning in on the Talkies by Waltheill

It has been said that Hollywood is the soul of the movies and that New York is the brains. The body must be hidden behind the screen.

"Beware of Married Men" and "Beware of Bachelors" are warnings found in the movie titles. It would seem that trusting maidens are safe only with widowers.

The movies seem bent on aiding the movement to make jury service more attractive.

"The Woman on the Jury" has become "The Love Racket."

Thanks to radio, "Those Who Dance" need no longer pay the fiddler.

"Skirts," "Pants," "Shoes" and "Silk Stocking" are provided by the movies. And to finish off what the well dressed wear Warner Bros. furnish "Kid Gloves."

"Saturday's Children" are a boon to managers of movie theatres.

"The Sap" comes out of trees in spring and will reach the screen as a talkie this fall.

News reels recently carried pictures of a marriage ceremony in Africa where two goats were sacrificed.

It is not always so unanimous in this country.

"Stolen Kisses" are usually returned immediately.

Even the spooners have a theme song for their movies—"A Kiss in the Dark."

For "Double Feature" Day "What's Your Husband Doing?" "You'd Be Surprised."

When John Barrymore, as "General Crack," speaks for the first time from the screen his leading lady will be Marian Nixon.

POLLYANNA

Cuddle Master (to new recruit): "Now, then, young feller, hop to it, and don't stand around lookin' dumb like as if you was a member of the club."

For the girls who expect to do nothing but dance the rest of their days, likely the best waltzer is as good a husband as they can choose.

First Drunk (Before a polar bear cage in Zoo): "Whozat lady in there with the white fur coat?"

Second Drunk: "S'my wife. I petted her and she tried to bite me."

Stern Parent—When I was a boy I had to work for my living.

Idle Son—Well, father, there's no job any harder than working you for a living.

Was somebody lying about the discovery of a truth-telling serum.
